MIKE MARTIN

How to Fight a War

'An illuminating and enjoyable account of warfare and guidelines to achieve lasting peace. How to Fight a War is also written in an engaging style, rich in personal and historical anecdote, that lays out complex issues in an absorbing and logical way.' — Financial Times

'Colourful, punchy, admirably challenging and clear—essential reading for every soldier, officer and General.' — General Sir Patrick Sanders, Chief of the General Staff, British Army

'Many of today's pundits, journalists, and so-called "experts" would do well to put down their phones, give their thumbs a rest, and pick up Martin's How to Fight a War. Refreshing one's recollections of the basics of war or simply encountering them for the first time, would make for far more enlightened and productive discussions. Beyond the commentariat, politicians would equally do well to become acquainted with War 101.' — Diplomatic Courier

Why We Fight

'Fascinating [and] accessible . . . Martin's enjoyable book makes a positive contribution to a major debate.' — Prospect

'Should be required reading for not just biologists, psychologists and historians, but military leaders and recruiters as well.' — The British Army Review

'Anyone interested in war and international relations will find much to challenge and intrigue them in Mike Martin's application of evolutionary theory to the question of what drives men to fight.' — Professor Sir Lawrence Freedman

DAVID KILCULLEN

Out of the Mountains

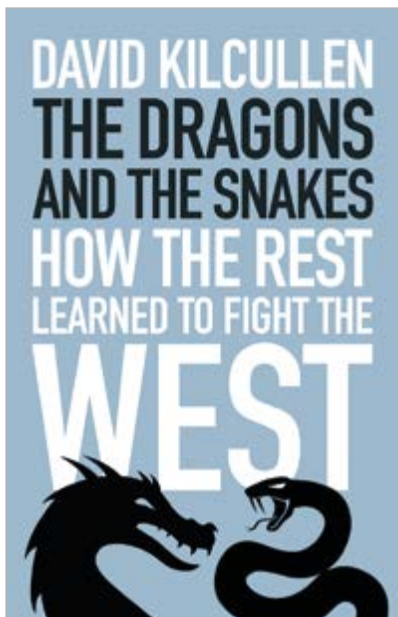

The Coming Age of the Urban Guerrilla

'An iconoclastic new book on future urban conflicts.'
— Washington Post

'Perceptive and thoughtful.' — The Guardian

'[Kilcullen] argues that we must rapidly find a way to build our own security networks to prepare for the coming age of urban guerrillas.' — Admiral James Stavridis, USN (Ret), Former Supreme Allied Commander at NATO

'This is a brilliant book by the most unfettered and analytically acute mind in the military intelligentsia. . . unflinchingly confronts the nightmare of endless warfare in the slums of the world.' — Mike Davis, author of Planet of Slums

2022 | 9781787387218
336pp | £12.99 | PB

DAVID KILCULLEN

The Dragons and the Snakes

How the Rest Learned to Fight the West

'This book should be read by everyone in uniform.'
— The Times

'Impressive ... based on a formidable array of military and political sources.'
— The Financial Times

'Once again David Kilcullen succeeds in demonstrating how our adversaries are adapting faster than we are to the experiences of the recent past. Timely advice for defence strategists.'
— Professor Sir David Omand

David Kilcullen is an author, an expert on unconventional and guerrilla warfare, and a former soldier and diplomat. He was a senior counterinsurgency adviser during the Iraq and Afghanistan wars.

CEDRIC DELVES

Across an Angry Sea

The SAS in the Falklands War

Shortlisted for the Templer Medal Best First Book Award

'Sobering . . . unlike many SAS shoot-'em-up books, this one about raids aborted as well as successful is humane and sensitive in tone.' — Evening Standard, Books of the Year

'Delves has written one of the most thoughtful, thought-provoking and quietly intelligent military memoirs I've ever read . . . gripping and heart-rending.' — The Mail on Sunday

'Frank and vivid.' — New Statesman

'A rich reservoir of primary source material on SAS contributions and decisions at the tactical and operational levels . . . This candid tale will resonate with those who appreciate first-hand accounts of warfare and lessons discovered through honest introspection.' — Small Wars Journal

Cedric Delves joined the Army in 1966, was commissioned into the Devonshire and Dorset Regiment and later joined the SAS, which he commanded at every level. He also led the Special Forces before becoming Commander of the Field Army.

BEN TIMBERLAKE

High Risk

A True Story of the SAS, Drugs and Other Bad Behaviour

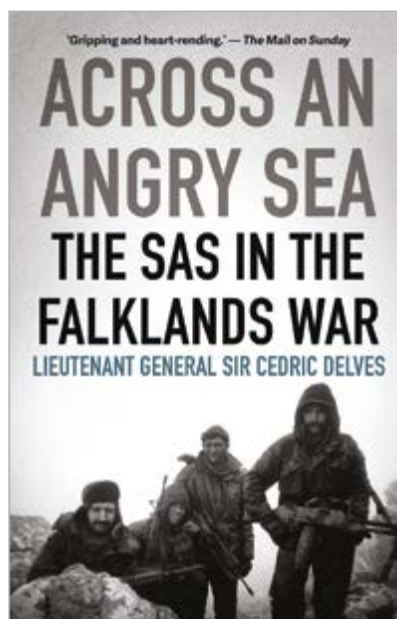

'[Timberlake's] powers as both observer and writer make the journey utterly compelling. . . It's rare to find a book like this where the writing is just as exhilarating as the thrills. It is dark, visceral, clever and very funny. Boy's Own with brains.' — The Sunday Times

'Funny, chaotic but unexpectedly profound.' — Times Magazine (London)

'A damn scary book so of course I loved it. High Risk is, in a way, the story of a wicked Mr Hyde inventing a serum to transform himself into a reputable Dr Jekyll. Let's hope the serum keeps working.' — P.J. O'Rourke, author of Give War a Chance and Holidays in Hell

'Ferociously smart, startlingly honest and very, very funny.' — Kate Weinberg, novelist and author of The Truants

Ben Timberlake is a security consultant and medic in high-risk areas, specialising in Iraq and Syria. In a previous life his undercover missions concerned nuclear terrorism, the Far Right, and the trafficking of people, wildlife and organs.

ŁUKASZ KAMIŃSKI

Shooting Up

A History of Drugs in Warfare

'Fascinating, immensely detailed and surprisingly sober ... A rich and compendious book.'

— The Sunday Times

'A historical sweep from the Battle of Hastings to Waterloo or ancient Greece to Vietnam suggests that war has rarely been fought sober.' — London Review of Books

'In this compelling book about the history and prevalence of alcohol and drugs throughout the history of warfare, Kamiński reveals in copious detail the countless ways "intoxication, in its various forms, has ... been one of the distinctive features" of human life.' — The Guardian

'In this profound, troubling, and deeply informative book, Kamiński investigates the relationship between intoxicants and warfare.' — Foreign Affairs

Lukasz Kamiński is Associate Professor at the Faculty of International and Political Studies, Jagiellonian University in Kraków, Poland.

KENNETH PAYNE

I, Warbot

The Dawn of Artificially Intelligent Conflict

An Economist Best Book of the Year

'Exceptionally timely [and] clear-sighted.' — Financial Times

'A thought-provoking reflection on how AI will change conflict.' — The Economist

'An engaging and accessible guide to the development of artificial intelligence (AI) as applied to war.' — Foreign Affairs

'An important reminder that military AI is not purely a technological feat, but also a ground for reckonings on the ethics of warfare and creative strategy. In advocating thoughtful regulation of autonomous systems, Payne offers his counterpoint to the Asimov-esque robot overlords of science fiction: "War will remain something that is done by, and to, humans".' — International Affairs

Kenneth Payne is a reader in International Relations at King's College London.

DAVID KILCULLEN

The Accidental Guerrilla

Fighting Small Wars in the Midst of a Big One

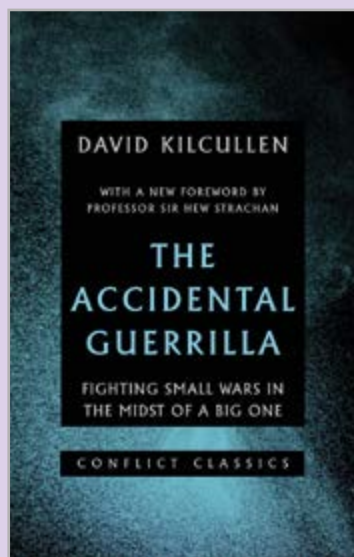

WITH A FOREWORD BY SIR HEW STRACHAN

‘For a wider perspective on the lessons drawn from the ‘war on terror’, the reader can do no better than turn to Mr Kilcullen’s excellent book.’ — The Economist

‘At the heart of this significant book is the author’s declaration that terrorism cannot be addressed by military means alone: that for American or British soldiers merely to kill insurgents is meaningless.’

— Max Hastings, The Sunday Times

An Intimate War

An Oral History of the Helmand Conflict

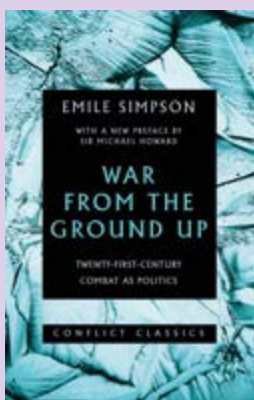

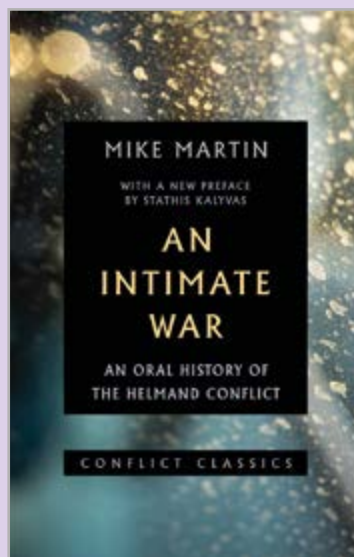

WITH A FOREWORD BY STATHIS N. KALYVAS

‘Brilliant.’ — Rory Stewart, TLS

‘An uncompromising, deeply thought and important contribution.’ — Tom Coghlan, The Times

‘Quite simply, the book on Helmand.’ — General Sir David Richards GCB, CBE, DSO, ADC Gen; Commander of International Forces in Afghanistan, 2006-7 and UK Chief of the Defence Staff, 2010-13

ROGER FALIGOT

Chinese Spies

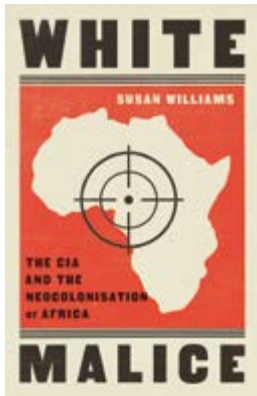

From Chairman Mao to Xi Jinping

‘With increasing tensions in the trade war between America and China, concerns about the future of democracy in Hong Kong, and the controversy surrounding Huawei’s 5G mobile networks, Chinese Spies is a very timely and important book.’

— The Wall Street Journal

Roger Faligot is an investigative journalist and author of many books on European and Asian intelligence.

SUSAN WILLIAMS

White Malice

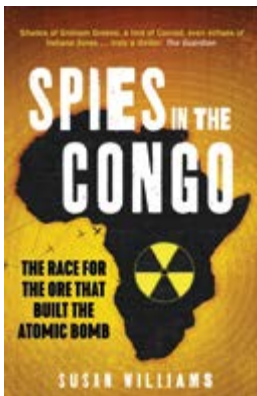

The CIA and the Neocolonisation of Africa

A Counterfire Book of the Year

‘Williams does a nice line in intrigue. There is a John le Carré quality to many of the episodes [in White Malice]. CIA operatives turn up as journalists, interpreters, businessmen and private secretaries, sometimes bearing suitcases of cash. ... [An] entertaining narrative.’

— Financial Times

Spies in the Congo

The Race for the Ore that Built the Atomic Bomb

‘To have found in the history of the Second World War a million square miles of unfamiliar territory—the Congo—is an achievement in itself. On top of that, her story is thrilling. Even the mundane details are delightful.’ — The Sunday Telegraph

Dr Susan Williams is a senior research fellow in the School of Advanced Study, University of London. Her pathbreaking books include Who Killed Hammarskjöld?, which in 2015 triggered a new, ongoing UN investigation into the death of the UN Secretary-General.

BRIAN STEWART & SAMANTHA NEWBERY

Why Spy?

The Art of Intelligence

‘Fascinating ... concise essays on all aspects of spying. The chapters on types of intelligence, how intelligence is (or should be) assessed and deception operations are riveting, full of illuminating detail.’ — The Scotsman

Brian Stewart, MC, CMG, was a soldier, colonial official, diplomat and the second-most senior officer in the British Secret Intelligence Service. Samantha Newbery is Programme Leader for Terrorism and Security at the University of Salford.

CHRISTOPHER COKER

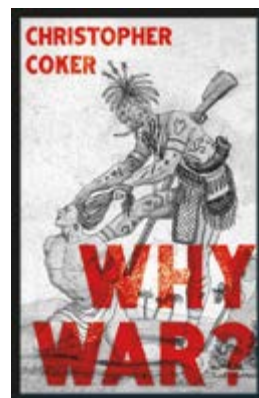

Why War?

'Few books have both impressed and depressed me in equal measures as much as this one has done. Christopher Coker's magnificently researched Why War? [...] demands your constant attention and rewards you for it.'

— Literary Review

Christopher Coker was Director of LSE IDEAS, the London School of Economics foreign policy think-tank.

2020 | 9781787383890 | 256pp | £20 | HB

Rebooting Clausewitz

'On War' in the 21st Century

'Christopher Coker answers the question of Clausewitz's relevance to the twenty-first Century by imagining the great master justifying his theories to modern audiences. His approach is engaging, illuminating and a bit mischievous.' — Sir Lawrence Freedman, Emeritus Professor of War Studies, King's College London, author of Strategy: A History

2017 | 9781849047142 | 192pp | £19.99 | PB

CHRISTOPHER COKER

The Improbable War

China, the United States and the Logic of Great Power Conflict

A History Today Book of the Year

'Coker's book serves as an insightful exposition of several cautionary points. The fact that the incidence of great-power wars has been declining, for example, has no bearing on the possibility of one between the United States and China. In addition, the irrationality of war does not make war impossible.' — Financial Times

CHRISTOPHER COKER

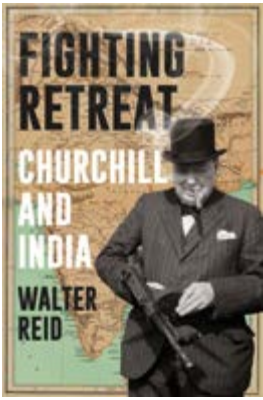

Warrior Geeks

How 21st Century Technology is Changing the Way We Fight and Think About War

'A fascinating historical and philosophical tour of modern warfare. ... The chief concern outlined by Coker is that the ingenuity driving military science is spiralling out of control. The 'geeks' are creating technologies — designer drugs, robotics and neural devices — that, ultimately, he feels, will dehumanize us.' — Nature

MICHAEL HOWARD

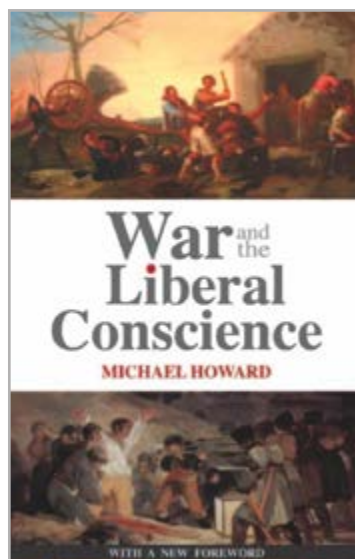

War and the Liberal Conscience

'Lucid, witty and trenchant ... these anti-war theories could hardly be more interestingly presented.' — RUSI Journal

'This is a book that everyone should read. It is a short, elegant masterpiece, where every chapter has the cliff-hanger ending of peace being declared, only to be followed by a new phase of war, more awful than that which had gone before.' — Professor James Gow, Dept. of War Studies, King's College London

Sir Michael Howard, OM, CH, CBE, MC was formerly Chichele Professor of the History of War and Regius Professor of Modern History in the University of Oxford.
